In consideration of The Journal of Rheumatology's publication of the Work, the Contact Author and any authors executing this assignment hereby agree as follows:

1. The Contact Author will ensure all authors read and sign this assignment and warrants that all the authors of the Work are listed below. If necessary, the Contact Author will photocopy this document and distribute to co-authors for their original signatures. A complete set of duly signed forms must be collected and returned prior to publication to:

Editor-in-Chief, The Journal of Rheumatology, 365 Bloor St. E., Ste 901, Toronto ON M4W 3L4 Canada;
Fax: 416-967-7556; E-mail: manuscripts@jrheum.com

2. Each author warrants that his or her submission to the Work is original and that he or she has full power to enter into this agreement. Neither this Work nor a similar work has been published nor shall be submitted for publication elsewhere.

3. Each author certifies that he or she has participated sufficiently in the intellectual content, the analysis of data, if applicable, and the writing of the Work to take public responsibility as defined under Authorship in The Journal of Rheumatology's "Guide for Authors." Each has reviewed the final version of the Work, believes it represents valid work, and approves it for publication. If excerpts (text, figures, tables, or illustrations) from copyrighted works are included, a written release will be secured by the authors prior to publication, and credit to the original publication will be properly acknowledged.

4. Each author warrants that he or she has obtained written releases from patients whose names or photographs are submitted as part of the Work. Should The Journal of Rheumatology request copies of such written releases, authors shall provide them to The Journal of Rheumatology in a timely manner.

5. On written request from the authors, The Journal of Rheumatology will grant permission to reproduce any text, figures, tables, or illustrations from this Work in future works of their own. Such permission will not be unreasonably withheld by The Journal of Rheumatology.

6. The authors hereby transfer, assign, and otherwise convey to The Journal of Rheumatology all copyright in and to the Work, and all rights therein, including but not limited to the right to publish, republish, transmit, sell, distribute, and otherwise use the Work in whole or in part in electronic and print editions of The Journal of Rheumatology and in derivative works throughout the world, in all languages and in all media of expression now known or later developed, and to license or permit others to do so.

2. Self-archiving Policy

Authors of original research articles may deposit the peer-reviewed accepted version of the manuscript to a non-profit institutional and/or non-profit centrally organized repository (including PubMed Central) but must stipulate that public access to the manuscript be delayed until 12 months after first online publication in The Journal of Rheumatology. For publicly funded research where the funder mandates earlier public access, the manuscript may be made available 6 months after first publication. When depositing an accepted manuscript to a repository, authors shall include an acknowledgment line (see below) and a hyperlink to the fully published version of the article posted on The Journal of Rheumatology website. This helps to ensure the article is correctly cited and will guarantee that the fully published and definitive version is readily available to those accessing the article from public repositories. The Journal of Rheumatology authorizes deposit of the accepted manuscript as prepared by the authors before publisher copy-editing and proof correction. For clarity, the final published version of the article as it appears in The Journal of Rheumatology after copyediting and proof correction may not be deposited. Authors should include the following credit line when depositing their accepted manuscripts: "This is a pre-copy-editing, author-produced PDF of an article accepted for publication in The Journal of Rheumatology following peer review. The definitive publisher-authenticated version [insert complete citation information here] is available online at: xxxxxx [insert URL for the fully published article here]."

3. Full Release Publication Option

For authors of original research articles who require immediate public access, The Journal of Rheumatology offers the option of Full Release publication. With this option, the author can elect to pay a fee to make the article available to non-subscribers from the time of first publication on The Journal of Rheumatology website. In contrast, articles published in the usual way, i.e., not as Full Release content, are subject to the usual subscription access controls. Full Release articles will be identified on our online table of contents. An article published under the Full Release option is subject to a publication charge of $4000 (plus applicable taxes). Regarding deposit requirement, authors may also self-deposit the final peer-reviewed version of the manuscript as described in Section 2 above to a centrally organized repository, such as PubMed Central.

Option not required

I choose the Full Release Publication option and agree to pay $4000 (plus applicable taxes) to make the article available to non-subscribers on The Journal of Rheumatology website from the time of first publication.

A late processing fee of $100 (plus applicable taxes) will apply for requests submitted after author approval of page proofs.
